

April 26, 1991 |By Joan Brazer

On Sunday, the Three Palms Cafe, 2151 Alternate A1A South, Jupiter, is hosting the fourth annual Taste of the Nation. From 7 to 10 p.m., top restaurants from Pompano Beach to Jupiter join Share Our Strength (S.O.S.) as it raises funds to fight hunger. Proceeds from the event benefit local, state and international hunger-relief agencies. ``Through A Taste of the Nation, those of us in the restaurant industry can give back something that's directly related to what we do every day,`` said event organizer Steve Gerson, chef/owner of the Three Palms. ``We hope that everyone remembers that 100 percent of the proceeds of this event will go directly to something that is meaningful -- food for the hungry.``

EatBeat: Taste of the Nation Returns to Palm Beach County April 13 at Kravis
April 12th, 2011

The big event this week is Share Our Strength's Taste of the Nation Palm Beach. A wine-and-dine-around, with more than 30 chefs participating, this event promises to be the "must-do" dining event of the season.

BACK TO PALM BEACH COUNTY

In the early '90s, Steve Gerson, a restaurateur in Boca Raton and Jupiter at the time, hosted early SOS Taste of the Nation dine-arounds in Palm Beach County at Conrad's of Boca, and then at Three Palms in Jupiter. Frank Eucalitto, chef/owner of Cafe Chardonnay in Palm Beach Gardens, and Bob Artley, food and beverage manager of The Breakers at the time, also were instrumental in working with the program.